

Tripp Donelan, Director of Sales

If you're able to catch a moment with Tripp Donelan in between his many travels checking in with buyer accounts and scouting new clients, it won't take you long to notice that he shares his father's passion for educating wine lovers about the story behind each glass of Donelan Family Wines.

As Donelan's director of sales, Tripp is focused on educating novices and oenophiles alike on his family's commitment to producing the best wines Sonoma County has to offer. Echoing his family's dedication to exceptional customer service, Tripp ensures each bottle of wine is delivered with the same level of care that went into its production.

Exposure early in his childhood to some of the world's finest wines helped cultivate a growing interest in epicurean affairs, that today Tripp still fosters through scallop diving, fishing and his work at the winery.

Tripp received a B.A. in Spanish language from Middlebury College. Prior to making the decision to join his family's burgeoning winery, he worked in investment banking. He currently lives in Healdsburg, Calif., where he takes every opportunity to enjoy California's beautiful terrain, when he's not unpacking and packing his suitcase.